Are There Trails When Switching Algorithms or Bypassing the New Revelation?

When switching between modes (Live or Preset) or switching between presets, the pedal automatically enters a "graceful transition" state, the Bypass LED will begin to flash letting you know that the Decay knob is gracefully returning to its new setting. This only applies when staying within the same algorithm and staying on the same pre delay setting. If you're switching between algorithms or pre delay settings, you will not have delay trails.

When bypassing the New Revelation, trails will always be active.
